Transportation

Train: the Metrorail system is the easiest way to get downtown. The Metrorail is an elevated train system that runs from Dadeland Mall up to Hialeah and Okeechobee. This is a great option for going into town for high-traffic events and concerts. <http://www.miamidade.gov/transit/metrorail.asp>

Light Rail: The Metromover runs in a loop around the city with stops near all major points of interest, as well as a north branch to the Omni Shopping Center and a south branch to the financial district. A similar Light Rail project for Miami Beach is on the planning board.

<http://www.miamidade.gov/transit/metromover.asp>

Bus: Miami-Dade also has a Metrobus system that thoroughly covers the county from southern Broward County to Key Largo, and from Miami Beach to west Miami-Dade. With over 600 buses and 82 routes, it connects to both the Metrorail and Metromover. Expansions are in the works for Kendall and South Miami-Dade. <http://www.miamidade.gov/transit/metrobus.asp>

Tri-Rail system: The Tri-Rail runs from the airport as far north as West Palm Beach and Mangonia Park. If you want to take a day trip into Boca Raton without the stress of driving the turnpike, Tri-Rail will give you that extra time to relax. There is an intersection with the Metrorail north of the city. <http://www.tri-rail.com/>
